THE IRISH QUESTION.

UNIONISTS AND MR. ASQUITH

[Reuter's Service To The "Telegraph."]

London, Received April 3.

The political outlook is much brighter, as is evidenced by the canteen scandal case have been the French heavyweight chamfact that the King has left for committed for trial. Windsor, and also that the Unionist Headquarters are asking follows :local Unionists at East File not to oppose Mr. Asquith in the byeelection.

There is a strong and growing feeling among the moderates of all sides against risking civil war since the Federal and other suggestions for a settlement of the Ulater dispute.

Lord Hugh Cecil has made an important contribution towards peace, having given notice of a motion that the Home Rule Bill Honorary be sent to a committee of thirty members to frame suggestions to the House of Lords in accordance Staff Sergeant Thomas Millward, with the provisions of the Parlianent Act to take what steps it Hon. Captain and Quartermaster hinks expedient in the interests of peace and good government in Ireland. This would enable the carrying out of the exclusion of Ulster, combined with the Federal or other plan.

Mr. Asquith is to speak at East Tife on Saturday.

Another Debate.

In the House of Commons, on a debate on the Home Rule Bill. Mr. Balfour stated that the esson for an entirely different atmosphere prevailing had nothing to do with the Army, but was due to the fact that the Government and its supporters had James Oraig, formerrly general fjust realised that Ulster was determined not to submit to Home Rule and that the majority of Englishmen agreed with Ulster. He had never believed in a Federal United Kingdom, but he would not stand in the way of any moderate form of Devolution if it would avert civil war.

Mr. Herbert Samuel said the most remarkable feature of the debate had been the support of the principle of Federation. The prospects of any conference or commission representing al parties arriving at a Federal colution of the difficulties would not be bright if the question of Home-Rule-for Ireland remained still unsettled. Only after the present Bill, with the temporary exclusion of Ulster, had been pleced upon the Statute Book would it be possible for such a commission to calmly discuss such constitutional alterations. Before the next stage of the Bill, however, there must be a considerable interval which could be utilised by conferences at which the various suggestions advanced might germinate into more fruitful proposals for accomoda-The whole Government hoped it would be unnecessary to again use coercion in Ireland. but the Opposition must not use the Government's reluctance in order to wreck the Bill He appealed to the Opposition to realise their share in the common responsibility to effect a settle-

A NEW REVOLUTIONARY PARTY.

Reuter's agency leares that several former revolutionaries were in Canton the other week trying to enrol supporters for another rising which, they declare, will shortly take place. They claim that their mission to Canton was highly successful, and that this time many tutubs, civil governors, and army commanders are supporting the movement. This kind of tale is long since grown tiresome; even if it should come to anything, it will he no more, we may be sure, than a mere flare for a moment. It is no simple Towards Peace... matter at present to arrange a rising that shall have even moderate hope of success—especially in the South where, alike during the revolution and during the rebellion last year, no great stomach was shown by the rebels for fighting. A Southern revolutionary party sides to secure a peaceful settle. is a body that has scant hope of success, though it may cause a deal ment. If there had been less of annoyance.

According to the message which gave this interesting information," many of the present tutule and other high officials were only sides in the earlier stages of the outwardly followers of the President." This is the sort of state- compaign a settlement might ment which must be taken with considerable reserve. After the last have been arrived at long ago. uprising tutules and high officials are likely to be very careful about About the most important contriadmitting the fact, even if they are only lukewarm supporters of bution to the debate which has the President. But the cream of the statement lies in the advice been offered in one by Lord Hugh the leaders of the new party are alleged to have given as to how Cecil. He has given notice of "the coming struggle" can be avoided. It is worth quoting. All motion that the Bill be sent to a that the President has to do is

To repeal all laws that he has made without the consent of Parliament; to reinstate all representative assemblies. including Parliament, provincial legislatures and District Councils: to suspend further negotiation for foreign loans: to grant freedom of speech as provided in the Provisional Constitution; to suspend martial law, and to call for a peace. conference inviting Wu Ting-fang, Tang Shao-yi, Kang Yuwei, LiangChi-chao, Sun Yat-sen, Huang Hsing, and perhaps Liang Shih-yi, who all as a body might call other persons to consider ways and means of uniting all parties and interests in the Republic.

This is the most preposterous kind of nonsense. In any other country almost the suggestion would be a joke and accepted as a some time longer, a settlement by the Chinese in 1900 and were joke. In China the case is very different. It is impossible to may be found. avoid the conclusion that if this sort of talk is indulged in trouble may arise. The soldiery especially may be influenced into becoming restless. Only the other day, indeed, a report was abroad of Governor General Lung's troops having broken out and having killed people for no apparent reason. We were able to deny the report in our columns, but an outbreak is always possible if such Mr Elly off godown 15, at Tanmoonshine as is quoted above is preached to a credulous soldiery. It is hardly possible to escape a feeling of despair when one sees men deliberately and wantonly indulging in such mischief-making. buckshot, the saurian dived in. very substantial concessions. The Only Way. From the fact that the Chief Engineer, Accountant, Traffic Manager and all materials are to be British, it is evident that China has come to a full realisation of the point that if her railways are to be pushed forward she must look to foreign sources not only for funds but also for expert guidance. There have narrow-minded, shortsighted Chinese who have never been tired of raising the bogey of the jeopardising of China's rights | p.m. as previously notified. when lenders have been given a lien on undertakings against a loan. And when they talk they overlook the generous treatment which China has hitherto received at the hands of foreign interests in the matter of railway concessions. She has heen shown every consideration and given every latitude. We need go no further afield than

Railway to establish that fact.

It looks very much as though will be set seide. The Unionists uit. had a poor chance of success anyhow. Colonel Sprot is a fine gentleman but he is not strong enough to oust Mr. Asquith. He must one should think, be getting tired of being beaten by big guns. La 1906 he opposed Mr. John home. The case was proceeding as moved for an injunction and it was held that the existing Government of Switzerland not having been recognized by the British Government could not be noticed by the English Courts: the right of suit being connected directly with official recognition by the Government of the state. Now ithe principle laid down in U.S. A. v. Wagner, the case most strongly relied on for the defendant, is concisely summarized in the head note in the Law Report as follows:-

A foreign covereign state adopting the republican form of Government, and recognized by the Government of Her Majesty. can sue in the Courts of her Majesty in its own name so recognized.

Such a state is not bound to sue in the name of any officer of: the Government or join as coplaintiff apy officer on whom process may be served, and who may be called upon to give discovery in a cross bill.

Page Wood V.O. had held in the Court below that a Foreign sovereign state is not entitled to sue in the English Courts without putting forward some public officer as representing their interests, upon whom process may be served, and who can be called upon to give discovery upon a cross bill.

The Court of Appeal reversed this decision, pointing out that na injustice could be done in this o se by allowing the U.S.A. to me in their own name.

The Court examined carefully the principles governing the right of suit in the English Jourts of a foreign state.

The Lord Chancelor said at page 587. In a monarchy all the public rights and interests of the nation are vested, in and represented by the Menarch. In a republic they are the property of the state. Later on Lord Chelmsford said, "We were referred to a ois) of the President of the USA. v. Deam wond (1) 33 Beav. 449, in which a suit was instituted in the name of the President for a legacy given to. the United States.

It does not appear that any objection was raised to the title of the President to sue. But he. having been authorized by an Act of Congress, to proceed to obtain the legacy, before the dedision was pronounced, the bill was ordered to be amended by introducing a statement of the authority by which the plaintiff was qualified to sue.

Now this case, referred to without disapproval by the Lord authority in the plaintiff's favour hat it recognises the right of a sovereign state to delegate to a state official under its own municipal law the power to enforce rights of property to a state official. Turner L. J. said at page

"In the cases referred to, the form of Givernment wis monsuch cases the public property of the state, so far as it is not by the constitution of the state otherwise destined vests in the soveriegn.

In the case of a republic, the public property of the state, remains in the state."

Here the learned L. J. takes category of those requiring careful 347. was next referred to. In that pains to point out that the preaumption that public properly in sovereign is rebuted if it to made p appear that the municipal law the state places it elsewhere. What he says with reference to republic must be clearly be read is subject to the same exception.

Again Lord Cairns says at p.

"In a Monarchical form of Government, in him (the sovereign) individually, and not in a representative capacity, is the public property assumed by all other states and by the Courts of other states, to be vested. "In a republic on the other hand the sovereign power and with it the public property, is held to remain and to reside in the state itself and not in any officer of the

"Here again the proposition laid down is not that in a monarchy only the sovereign or that n a republic, only the epublic itself will be recognized by the Courts as having a right of suit. The statement goes no furth r than that they may sue, and that, prima facie and in the absence of contrary evidence, the state property will be assumed to lie in them.

I come next to the case of Castaneda v. Clydebank Engincering Co. 1902, A. C. 524. The first paragraph of the head note is as follows: "There is no such rule as that the monarch or other titular head of a foreign sovereign state is the only person who can sue here in respect of the public property or interest of that state." Now in that case the defendants who were shipbuilders had entered into a contract" with the Minister of Marine of Spain to baild certain ships.

The Minister brought an action to enforce the contract and the Court held that the right to enforce that contract and the penalties under it was in the contracting party. It was proved that by the consititution of Spain the Minister had a right to recover the money and it was held that further,

NEW RAILWAY.

GREAT CONCESSION TO BRITAIN.

Shanghai, Received April 2. The Nanking-Hunan Railway traverces the richest country and has the best possibilities of traffic of any route in China. The Corporation taking over the Pinghaiang-Ohuchow railway will also build branches from Hangehow to Wuhu and Wuchang, giving an aggregate length of nearly a thousand miles. The construction will necessitate the flutation of loans amounting to £8.000,000, " which will be secured by a mortgage on the line and its revenues.

It is agreed that the chief engineer, the accountant and the traffic manager and all the materials shall be British:

LOG BOOK.

Marino Bolier, Accidents.

Report No 2244 deala with a mishap to the hoiler of the cleam trawler Marjorie last March She is a vessel engaged in fishing from Fleetwood, and left thereon February 26. On March 4 the weather was so bid that it was advisable to shelter in Loch Rosg. fale of Lewis, and anchorage was found there in about 15 fathoms. The versel sheltered at Loch Roag for three days. The chief driver tried the density of the boiler water, which he found stood at 132 ounces. Uwing to a stream of fresh water flowing into Luch Roag, it was thought that the water there would be less dense, and accordingly the opportunity was taken to freshen! the contents of the boiler by twice pumping up to a fall glass and then blowing down. This: reduced the density to 122 ources. On the following day the boiler water was again similarly freshened, but the density was not tried. On March 6 the weather cleared, and a move was made to proceed to sea. After a few revolutions, the feed pipe, joints, on the length adjicent to the main obeok valve, gave out. The second driver stated that when this pipe was taken down sait wra hanging from the valve seat and into the pipe. The vessel weighed anchor again on March 7 at 1 30 p.m., and reached the mouth of Lach Roag, about six miles distant. The second driver, who was on watch, went into the stokehold to attend to the fires, and found both furnace crowns coming down. He called the chief driver, and the fires were drawn. Whilst this was being done an escape of steam was heard, so all left the engine-room. The explosion them occurred and dense volumes of steam came from the stokehold. The vessel was towed back to an anchorage, and eventually to Fleetwood ... where it was found that a hole 61 inches by finch had formed in the crown of the starboard furnace, due to the precipitation of salt.

Report No. 2249 deals with a seems that grooving had occurred on the inside of the curve of the flanging immediately above the vessel left Hull on May 3, 1913, were stopped, as the skipper was preparing to shoot the nets. The chief driver went on deck, and returned to the engine room at 7.15 p.m. Hearing a blow, he went into the stokehold and noticed the plates were covered with hot water and the stokehold full of steam. He opened the blowdown cocks and started the bilge ejector. When able to examine the boiler, he found the frontend plate had fractured above the cort furnace. He fitted stude at the ends of the crack and caulked. the plate, lie then filled the boiler and raised steam, to apressure of 801b., which enabled, the vessel to be taken to a safe. anchorage. The boiler was then again; blown down and the crack was repaired by means of a series. of interlocking stude; which enabled the vessel to be taken. home to Hull.—Board of Trade Reports.

The Crog Curve. Admiral Fir George King-Hall, peaking at a meeting of the Royal Courts of Justice, and Logal Temperance Socitety; said that the cause of temperance in the Navy would never make the progress they desired until the grog-system was abolished.

Experimenta which had been made by the commander of his was at its lowest on Mondays; when they came back from their week-end leave, and that it gradually improved until the Fridays, when it was at its best. A chart was posted up for the men to see the result, and so much did it impress them that they called it the grog curve."

BRIGAND OUTRAGES.

Old Man Roasted Alive. Mei heien, Shenni, 12th March. About a fortnight ago the brigands enacted the vilest deed that I have heard of in this district for many a long day. About forty li to the east of Mei hsien a wealthy farmer had built himself a small citadel where he dwelt with his family, numbering in all about forty persons. When the brigands made their appearance this man berred his gates and went upon the walls to protect his property, but, by the time he had his weapons of war ready. the gate was burging and in a short time gave way, thus letting the fiends rush in. All the male members of the family were done to death, except one son who was away from home at the time: The old man was strung up to a beam, then a fire was lit around While in this predicament they forced bim to disclose his hidden treasura, silver, opium and everything else of any value. Even when his cath was given them that everything had been revealed they had no mercy for the old man, but left him suspenied.
